Australia is an island, a country and a continent. It is in the southern hemisphere. This means that when it's summer there, it's winter in Europe and Asia. Australia is a(n) Commonwealth country. This means it is still ruled by the Queen of England. The first people to live in Australia were the Aborigines. They arrived as long as 50,000 years ago. A huge rock called Uluru is a special place for them. It is on the World Heritage List. Everything in Australia changed in 1770 when Captain John Cook arrived. He claimed all the land for England. England started sending prisoners there, and many stayed to live. In the outback, or country, farmers are far from everything. Their kids go to school with the help of the Internet. Australians love sports. They have hosted the Olympics twice. Today, Australia is modern and has two very large cities. People from all over the world live there. It is estimated that soon there will be more Asians born in Australia than Europeans.
