Cathy had a birthday party, and her friends all gave her presents. She got a doll and sandals, but her favorite present was a necklace. After the girls ate, Cathy's mom brought out the cake. Cathy blew out the flames, and the girls watched a movie. After the party, her mom told her to put all the empty cans in the recycling bin. Then her mom told her to recycle all the wrapping paper, too. Cathy, feeling lazy, put the paper in the garbage. The next morning Cathy couldn't find her necklace. She had to admit to her mom that she had thrown the paper away. Unfortunately, the trash had just been picked up. Cathy and her mom went to the landfill. They looked through the garbage but couldn't find the necklace. After seeing the landfill and talking to her mom, Cathy understood why recycling was important for the environment. Back at home, Cathy found her necklace. Her dog had had it—and it was made of recycled plastic.
