The great hero Heracles was the son of Zeus and a human mother. This angered Hera, Zeus's wife. She put a spell on Heracles that made him kill his family. To make up for this crime, he told King Eurystheus he would serve him for twelve years. The King also hated Heracles and gave him very dangerous tasks. Heracles did these tasks. He captured a deer, a boar and a bull. He killed the Hydra, a lion, and a flock of birds. He also cleaned a huge barn without getting his hands dirty. For one task, Heracles had to fight the Amazons, who were warrior women. He brought back a belt for the King's daughter. One of his last tasks was to steal golden apples from his father's tree. It was guarded by a dragon. He killed it and got the apples. Heracles even went to the underworld for his final task. After completing his twelve labors, he was free to go. However, he had many adventures after that.
