Beginning

The children enter their new adventure and see a big oyster shell. They discuss eating raw oysters. Max thinks they're disgusting/gross.

Middle

The attendant brings them oyster suits that have visors to protect their faces. She explains that they will enter the oyster as food particles. Oysters are filter feeders. This means they get food by taking in water and using little hairs to move and filter it. The kids slide down into the oyster but don't enter the mouth. Instead, they get stuck against the inside of the shell.

End

The oyster comes, and it looks like a giant orange. It covers them with something. Then they see the point of a(n) knife, which pops the shell open. When they look in the mirror, they see that they look like pearls.
