rising steer music paddle sense boulders nervous

Rob announces that the students will be shooting the rapids in their canoes. David is 1. nervous , so Alex asks for a quotation. Jin Kyeong tells the group a quote, but it doesn't quite make 2. sense . David corrects it: "Our greatest glory consists not in never falling, but in 3. rising every time we fall." This means that you shouldn't let your mistakes keep you down. The group reviews what to do if their canoes tip over. Rob says each person will 4. paddle from the bow and from the stern. Katie points to two big 5. boulders that look like the Symplegades. They discuss how Jason's ship had an eye that could see where it was going. Wen says he wishes his canoe could see and 6. steer itself, but David says that he would rather do it. Before, he was only interested in 7. music , but Venture Quest has made him want to try new things.
